This training is for those assigned to the all-important role of Field Training Officer (FTO) on how an FTO process should be managed. They will be instructed on what subjects and tactics recruit officers need to be evaluated on. However, few FTOs themselves are trained on how to teach and demonstrate those subjects and tactics.

Scenarios & Tactics for the Field Training Officer is a dynamic, interactive, and informative seminar developed by highly experienced police officers, trainers and FTOs.

In this 2-day program, students will examine their FTO role from the very beginning of the Field Training process to the ultimate end. They will address the Why about their role and goals. They will learn how to teach adults and consider generational differences. They will reexamine their understanding of tactics and how to mentor, demonstrate and teach recruits so they will develop an understanding of how proficiency is developed and how they should utilize that understanding as their careers progress.
